

INNOVATION ON HIGHLIGHTS

ABOVE - Seeing the Latest Solutions: Rusty Storjohann (middle), corporate senior VP of operations, and Jim De Caro (right), corporate transportation and safety manager of Food Services of America visit with a representative of Great Dane Trailers. The DSC Expo provides an opportunity to kick the tires on the latest equipment and get immediate answers from vendors about equipment capabilities.

At the EXPO:
"I'm here to see what's new," said Paul Green, vice president of operations at United Natural Foods, Providence, RI, a first time attendee of the conference. "We are very green and very sustainability oriented. It's helpful to see everything at once at the Expo, plus I'm getting a lot out of networking."

The Future Workforce: Dr. Elliott Stephenson (left), VP of human resources at Ben E. Keith Foods, led an Executive Track session on converging factors shaping the workforce. Attendees at the standing room only session (below) included company leaders, HR, and operations managers.

Full House: Opening day traffic on the show floor (above).

At the EXPO:
"I've been coming here for 15 years," said Shawn Sorensen (right), vice president of operations at Upper Lakes Foods, Cloquet, MN. "I like to stay up with new technology and there is always something new. I'm interested in everything from forklifts to batteries."
Jim Bradshaw (left), COO at the company said: "After coming here for three years, I find that we all have many the same issues to deal with. I find the seminars very valuable."
